

Philip Satow

Co-Founder, The Jed Foundation

Phillip M. Satow is both the former President of Forest Pharmaceuticals, Inc. and Executive Vice President of Forest Laboratories, Inc., its parent. He is currently a Director of Forest Laboratories and a Director of Crucell, Inc., a publicly traded Dutch biotech company. Phil is a past President of the Columbia College Alumni Association and a member of the Board of Visitors.

In 2000, Satow and his wife, Donna, co-founded The Jed Foundation, a public charity committed to reducing the young adult suicide rate and improving the mental health support provided to students by universities nationwide. The Foundation is currently collaborating on mental health programming with universities serving nearly 1.5 million students.

Phil received his bachelor's degree from Columbia College and his master's in economics from Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. Phil and his wife Donna currently reside in New York City.
