INFINITE POSSIBILITIES

THE JED FOUNDATION'S EIGHTH ANNUAL GALA
THURSDAY, JUNE 11, 2009 | NEW YORK CITY

PROTECTING THE POTENTIAL OF OUR STUDENTS

The Jed Foundation is the nation's leading organization working to reduce emotional distress and prevent suicide among college students. As families and communities, we invest significant time, energy and resources to help young people get a college education because we know it is vital to their future and ours. Yet these investments frequently fail due to preventable mental health issues that are misunderstood or overlooked. Emotional problems are a leading impediment to success in college. Even more tragic, suicide is the second leading cause of death among college students. Through your support, The Jed Foundation is protecting the emotional health of young people across the country by changing the way students and parents think about mental health, paving the way for more young people to get treatment if needed and helping colleges create safer, healthier campus communities. The organization's programs include: the Peabody Award-winning Half of Us Campaign with mtvU that reaches over 9 million students; ULifeline, an online resource that provides campus-specific information and resources for over 1,400 colleges and features a screening tool that was used by 25,000 students in the last year alone; The Transition Year Project with the American Psychiatric Foundation that helps students and parents navigate the transition into college with a focus on emotional health; and widely used tools that guide colleges through a strategic planning process when addressing mental health on campus and creating protocols for at-risk students.
